Underwater Crossing of Pole New Safeguard Against Russia

ing underwater crossing of the vast north polar ice cap by two atom powered American submarines marks an epochal advance in both military and scientific supremacy for the United States of immense import to the entire world.

It demonstrates our leadership in the practical application of the use and advantages of our thus far exclusive capability of harnessing and utilizing atomic power, and at the same time proves that we have a dependable and inescapable new avenue and arm of attack . . . if need be . . . for delivering nuclear blows to Russia or any other part of the world and at any time.

Although Russia is reputed to have a fleet of several hundred submarines, to this date none are known to be atomically powered or even able to launch long range atomic missiles. The entire fleet of Soviet subs has thus been outmoded by a comparative handful of the new American atomic vessels which can cruise as much as 50,000 miles without refueling and are known to have the capacity of firing nuclear weapons. Up to this time the most disturbing threat to the Kremlin has been the known fact that American bombers are Now-How to Get It Out Again?

This Side of The Sun By Phat

August goes in three more days, Next week it is September I'm glad of that for I m about To be a glowing ember.

Although September isn't necessarily a cool month. If it's tepid, it'll be all right with me.

ANY OF YOU who have been with me for some time have read in here remarks about the need for traffic officers in unmarked cars.

I have been abused for harboring an unsportsmanlike atti-tude toward motorists and their rights to drive as they please.

Have had upbraiding mail for upholding what my correspo ents said were 'sneaky' methods.

MY ARGUMENT is that policemen in unmarked cars ouldn't deprive anyone of anything.

In fact, it would give them It would give them a better chance to get home alive after that weekend drive.

THE ARGUMENT on the other side is that the sight of a marked police car or an officer in uniform is a deterrent to speed-minded motorists and a reminder to obey the law. Perhaps, but why do people have to be reminded?

Besides, when a driver is keeping an eye on the rear - view mirror, he isn't giving all of his attention to the road. THE ONLY PEOPLE who can logically object to unmarked police cars are those who want to fracture the regulations. Otherwise, why should they care?

There's a three-day holiday coming up this weekend and the toll will be heavy, as California will be one of the leading states, as it has been for many years, in this traffic toll. For California is one of the 15 states left which insists that police give a warning to potential law-breakers.

SURE, I KNOW that speed doesn't cause all of the accidents. There are the other goofy acts such as running red lights, ignoring boulevard stops, weaving or failing to signal.

But when speed is involved in an accident it is more fatal.

THERE WAS a loud yelp when radar traffic control was proposed — but it already has had its effect in cutting the traffic toll.

Anyway, what started this of thought was an item I read Sunday.

It set forth that in 33 states, unmarked cars are operating, and in each of these states, there has been a marked reduction in traffic fatalities.

ISN'T THAT worth more than the right to drive without what some motorists call the "invasion of the privacy of motor-

Palm Springs Heeds Call Of Hawaii

By MARJORIE G. POHL Palm Springs with surfboards

. or in other words your columnist is sprawled on the sand at the Hawaiian Village in the land of liquod sunshine, Honolulu

I'm about to undergo a thing called the surf test - just how long will it be before the blue expanse drags me away from this notebook and into the surf? I'm not betting on myself!

But to back track for a few minutes. The Matsonia provided a perfect way to reach this de lightful spot. Hawaiian music had us all in an island mood by the time the ship pulled away from the Matson dock thereby breaking the sea of colorful serpentine that was our last link to land. Air-planes may be speedier, but for the vacationer there is nothing quite like a shipboard crossing. Lazy days at sea aren't lazy at all if you are the "joining in" type. You'll soon find yourself deep in everything from horse races, to hula lessons, to the Cap-tain's dinner and cocktail party (an exceedingly pleasant occa-sion), to deck sports, even games (doubt if I ever laughed harder than I did at the zany makeup contest — blindfolded girls seated on an unknown mans lap and provided with a make up kit to decorate "the most beautiful" then of course there is sun bat

Have you wondered how the water got into your

Here's the story. It rose from the Pacific Ocean as vapor, and rode the wind to the mountains, where cooler air condensed it into drops of water and fell as rain or snow. Natural streams carry it to Palm Springs' Water Company diversion ponds, and then, races through more than 70,000 feet of giant steel pipe to one of three reservoirs. There, small leaves and other foreign matter settle to the bottom of a huge tank, while a tasteless chemical is added to make the water pure and wholesome.

This pure water is then stored in a 3,000,000 gallon reservoir until called upon to travel along the 160 miles of distribution mains to your home.

Filly Sets New Record in Winning Rich Hambeltonian

DU QUOIN, III,-UPD-A trim, brown filly with a thoroughbred's heart, Emily's Pride, ranked to day with the great names of harness racing.

The three - year - old daughter of Star's Pride first trotted the of Star's Price first trotted the fastest Hambletonian heat ever by a filly, 2:00 1-5, and then shook off the shock of banging into a rival's sulky to come back and win the 33rd Hambeltonian, harness racing's classic stake, witha record speed of 1:59 -4-5 in the third heat.

The win was not unexpected since previously she boasted the best time fof the field for a mile this year, 2:00 2-5, and was an even money co-favorite to win, although no pari - mutual betting was allowed and only friendly vagering occurred.

But after her stellar first heat performance, there came the op-portunity to show her heart. She was moving well in the back stretch, challenging last year's two - year - old champion, Sharp-shooter, for first place when her foot whacked into the wheel on Sharpshooter's sulky. She broke stride and finished 12th in the 14-horse field. The first tournament golf play of the season has been scheduled at Indian Wells Country Club for Aug-
